David Humphrey Biography

David Humphrey is senior data scientist at Railinc, where he has worked for more than 20 years. Before joining Railinc, he was an operations research analyst at Nortel Networks in Research Triangle Park, N.C. He has been an adjunct assistant professor at North Carolina State University and a visiting faculty member at the Naval Postgraduate School and the American University of Armenia.

Humphrey graduated from Purdue University with B.S. and M.S. degrees in industrial engineering. He earned a Ph.D. in industrial engineering from North Carolina State University, where he wrote his dissertation on response-surface optimization. He has visited 43 major league baseball parks.