

Nathan Schouvieller
Senior Merchant
Cargill Agricultural Supply Chain North America
Wayzata, Minnesota

Nathan Schouvieller is a senior merchant for Cargill on the agricultural supply chain team in North America, currently leading the rail corn and wheat trading efforts across Cargill's twelve elevators in the eastern United States. Since joining Cargill in 2014, he has held a variety of roles, starting in Cargill's Starches and Sweeteners group as a corn merchant and later trading feed ingredients for Cargill's seven corn mills and trading export corn oil, before moving to the agricultural supply chain.

Nathan has extensive experience with various modes of transportation (truck, rail, barge, vessel) across liquid and dry bulk products and has worked with every class 1 railroad in the US.

Nathan grew up in North St. Paul, Minnesota with close ties to the family farm his brother now runs in Morgan, Minnesota. He holds a bachelor's degree in Agricultural Business from the University of Minnesota and currently lives in the Twin Cities with his wife, one year old son and yellow lab Goldy (Go Gophers!)
