

Trevor Gillen

Director of Economic Planning, TTX

Trevor is an economist with a masters in economics from DePaul University. Following his graduate studies, Trevor worked as an economist for AECOM, an infrastructure consulting firm. Then Trevor worked as an economist for ArcelorMittal USA and then Cleveland Cliffs when the latter acquired the former. After working in the steel industry, Trevor transitioned to rail when he joined TTX as the director of economic planning. At TTX, Trevor provides economic forecasting as well as forecasts for imports and intermodal loadings and other ad hoc economic analysis.
