

Travis Krous

Travis Krous is a professional with over 20 years of dedicated service at Nestlé Purina PetCare Company, currently serving as the Senior Director of Supply Chain Operations. His expertise in managing transportation and logistics for North America is a testament to his strategic leadership and operational acumen. An Iowa State University graduate with a degree in Business, Travis's career trajectory has seen him evolve from managing local plant logistics to overseeing a vast network of supply chain operations. His hands-on experience in the first half of his career provided a solid foundation for the directorial responsibilities he holds today. Beyond his corporate role, Travis's influence extends to his position on the Board of Directors for the National Industrial Transportation League, where he contributes to shaping industry standards and practices.
